

Madras Straits Service (MSS)

Since 2002, India's imports from China have increased by over eight and a half times, with China's share in India's imports increasing from around 4% in 2002 to 9.4% in 2007. In the near future, the cargo movement between India and ASEAN countries is expected to increase continuously after the conclusion of a free trade agreement in mid-2008.

The inauguration of the Madras Straits Service (MSS), jointly operated by OOCL and Sea Consortium, is in response to increasing demand between Asia and India. Complementary to the existing "China India Express" (CIX) and "China Pakistan Express" (CPX) service, the MSS will provide our customers with full coverage of the Indian Subcontinent.
